GOULD SLAPS GORHAM 44-28, IN FIRST TUSSLE

Gould Academy opened its 1948-49 season with a 44-28 victory over Gorham, N. H., High School. The stiff game defense set up by the "Blue and Gold" held the New Hampshire team to one field goal in the first half while Gould was scoring 20 points. Three free throws for the losers made the half time score 20 to 5.

With the score 27 to 11 in the third period Coach Anderson pulled his regulars and the reserves finished the game. The scoring for the locals was evenly divided as Capt. Bennett, Hall, Hamilton, and Davis all connected for four field goals.

In a preliminary game the Gould JV's lost a thriller 35-33. Hobey Lowell starred for the Gould underclassmen with 15 points. Agnes scored 8 points and he twice tied up the game in the final minutes. Evans of Gorham came through with the winning basket with only seconds to go.

CROATIAN BARITONE AT ACADEMY FRIDAY EVENING

Piero Pierotic (pronounced Pee AIR oh Pee AIR-OT lah), Croatian baritone coming to Gould Academy on Friday, Dec. 10, at 7:30 has built a recital which is an artistic masterpiece. He recognizes that many audiences do not enjoy a formal recital. He has, therefore, built a special program which entertains but does not lose an iota of its musical "class".

This singer is a handsome, human fellow who loves to sing and who warmly appreciates his friends and audiences.

Piero Pierotic made his initial bow to a New York audience in Carnegie Chamber Music Hall in October, 1940. Mr. Pierotic claims no child-prodigy reputation, for it was after his years in school and college when he was a marine officer in the Yugoslavian navy, that the Chicago Opera tenor, Tino Patella, famous in Europe, "discovered" him and advised him to study in Vienna and Rome with the celebrated baritone, Riccardo Stracciari.

He made his operatic debut in Czechoslovakia; was engaged by the Dresden Opera, sang in radio, concert and opera in European capitals and finally became a member of the state opera in Vienna where he made a deep impression in the baritone roles of Traviata, Boheme, Pagliacci, Rigoletto and The Masked Ball.

The high light of his program comes when Mr. Pierotic, while his accompanist introduces a piano solo, does a quick off-stage change into the costume he wore several years ago on the Vienna stage. It is the costume he wore the night of which the Vienna Neue Frei Presse said, "Piero Pierotic, suddenly promoted to stardom, was the surprise of the evening. A baritone voice of wonderful timbre, of majestic high notes and dynamic shadings... enraptured the audience which regarded him with tumultuous applause." Then—after his accompanist concisely narrates the story of Verdi's "The Masked Ball," Mr. Pierotic closes his concert with a scene from that opera.

The entire concert is planned carefully as to content and timing. There is variety to please everyone; and throughout his audience understands that it is hearing a splendid artist and a most friendly one.

Mrs. Josephine Whitman returned home Sunday from the CMG hospital, Lewiston, where she has been a patient for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ann Bartlett went to East Rutherford last Thursday, where they will spend the winter with their son, Wilson Bartlett, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Fossett, son Paul, Mrs. Gerald Fossett and son, George, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Nathan French in Milan, N. H.

Mrs. Zella Keddy was not injured as badly as reported last week. Her knees were badly bruised but not fractured, and she is much improved at this time.

Capt. Sidney Dyke spent a few days last week at his home here. Mrs. Dyke accompanied him on his return and spent the week-end with relatives in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Paul Thurston, local chairman, reports that $105 has been received to date from the purchase of Christmas seals; donations are slowing up. Last year's total for Bethel was $204.40.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Van Den Kerckhoven and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tinkler attended a dinner and meeting of the Telephone Association of Maine in the Falmouth Hotel at Portland on Friday.

CARELESS DRIVER APT TO HAVE ACCIDENT ANYWHERE

"The finest highway in the world is not 'accident-proof' for a careless driver," Albert E. Willis, chairman of the Maine Petroleum Industries Committee, said Monday in urging an intensified program of highway safety education throughout the State.

Mr. Willis cited figures compiled by the Travelers Insurance Companies which showed that nearly 84 per cent of the persons killed in traffic accidents in 1947 and 71 per cent of the persons injured were traveling in cars moving straight ahead. Other figures which he quoted, from the same source, showed that nearly 45 per cent of highway accident fatalities in 1947 and 29 per cent of injuries occurred when the speed limit was being exceeded.

"No highway ever built, or possible to the most advanced engineering skills, could eliminate accidents of these types," he declared, "because they are caused by the human element—not by the engineering or mechanical equipment."

"Safety is primarily dependent on the man at the wheel of a car," he continued. "If he doesn't exercise common-sense and caution in driving and regulating his speed, he won't be able to avoid having an accident on the best-engineered highway ever built."

"Certainly our new highways can be, and must be, constructed with an eye to eliminating physical hazards—but on these finer highways of the future, recklessness of the individual driver will result in death and injury just as it does now."

"It is therefore of the utmost importance that we intensify our program of educating the motoring public to sane and sensible driving practices, and back this up with consistently firm enforcement of our traffic laws."

Mr. Willis said that "The Petroleum Industry in Maine, together with other Highway User Groups, believe that a Highway Safety Conference should be appointed by Governor-elect Payne in conformity with the recommendations of the President's Safety Conference."

We feel that this step is necessary because it will serve to correlate the educational activities of the several state agencies and private organizations which are at present independently seeking a solution to our highway accident problem. Because the careless action of the individual is the prime cause of traffic accidents the education of the individual in good safety practices remains our best hope for safety. Only through the intelligent, directed and coordinated action of all interested groups in the State can we hope to wage a successful fight for highway safety."

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Davis left Friday to spend the winter at St. Petersburg, Fla.

The man, Leonard Foss, was taken to the doctor's office by Deputy Sheriff Albert Grover, where Miss Libby identified him.

LOOKING AHEAD

Money for Adventure

We Americans are accustomed to growth and change. We have seen our nation go forward. We moved ahead not because we conquered other lands or won territory. That kind of progress has not interested us. Our fathers did find a new and raw continent here. But even while it was being explored and peopled, the inventive minds and venturesome spirits of Americans were laying the foundations for living standards and for peaceful industry that never before existed.

Our progress may be measured in greater standards of living and in greater production for the people. Hard work has produced growth. Now, there is no earthly reason why we cannot continue to grow and grow—except one. We cannot have progress if we are willing to quit growing. Like so many great civilizations of the past, it is possible for us to hit the skids. We can do just that if we become unconcerned and stop wanting to grow.

Savings That Work

Certain seeds of decay are now planted in our economy. You see, industrial growth does not come by itself. Expansion of our great industries has depended upon venture capital. Yet, venture money is scarce today. But what is venture capital? Venture capital is the money that has built these great factories. It is the savings that are risked to help people like Henry Ford and Alexander Graham Bell get started and keep on going.

It goes into brick and mortar. It is turned into locomotives and drag lines. It pays for the research that discovers new drugs and new plastics. It strings power lines to homes and factories. It buys lathes and dump trucks. It is back of pay checks that men must have, even before sales bring in the expected income. You see, if we want an adventurous industry, we must have venture capital, to do all these things and more.

Business Is Thrifty

Now, the big trouble is this. We have throttled down our supply of venture money. There are some who maintain that this source for new industrial activity has dried up. At least this is true. Both young enterprises and established firms are thirsting for the capital which even today's normal growth requires of them. They are also hungry for the go-ahead signal, to build new plants and to improve old ones. This requires much venture capital.

Consider the oil industry. Traditionally, the oil and gas business has been financed by private risk money. Yet, men in the industry say that 12 to 15 billion dollars more will be needed in the next ten years. Dollars for plant equipment and labor go less than half as far as they did 20 years ago, while risk capital has shrunk 75 per cent in that period. This industry is typical of many others that are hungry for capital.

Shortage Hits Us

Shortage of this venture money hits us hard at every point. Without it no products that ought to go far in benefiting mankind are side-tracked in favor of the sure money markets. New businesses, that must live almost entirely on risk capital, are handicapped. Without sufficient capital, production everywhere is curtailed, and this affects our jobs and our national well-being. No venture means a weak industrial machine that openly invites foreign aggression. Naturally, if no venture money is found for expansion, government always wants to step in and do it for us. We must remember that money for venture will be scarce and feared until we cut down government expenses and reduce taxes downward. It is your responsibility and mine to help keep our industry strong, adventurous, and free.

Dale Carnegie

Author of
"HOW TO WIN FRIENDS and INFLUENCE PEOPLE"
PEOPLE RESPOND TO PATIENCE

HERE is an incident told me by Marie Harnden, registered nurse, connected with the Eye Institute in New York City.

Miss Harnden is a Canadian and it will interest you to know that her experiences and observations have brought her to the conclusion that when it comes to handling people, those in our mental institutions are like you and me, differing only in degree.

D. Carnegie

One night she was on duty in the line room of the hospital where she trained when one of the mental patients stormed into her room. The girl's face was red with anger and emotion. As she approached Miss Harnden, she shouted and, waving her arms and shook her fists threateningly as if she meant to strike this nurse for something entirely alien to anything she had done.

Did Miss Harnden shout back at her in an effort to force her to be quiet? Did she call an attendant to force this poor, tried patient to be still? No, she did just what she should have done, and just what should have been done had that patient been someone from the outside world with what she thought was a rightful airing of a grievous wrong. In other words, just what you should do if someone became angry with you.

She merely waited until the patient had spent her anger, then she said patiently, quietly, in the gentlest and friendliest of tones, "What is the matter, Mary?"

Quick as a flash the storm in this patient's mind abated. She looked up at Miss Harnden and said with a smile, "Oh, hello, nurse." And all the trouble was over.

Says Miss Harnden, "We all have depressions, fears, elations and conflicts. In mental illness, the difference is only in degree and past the control or reasoning ability of the sick person. Whether a person is normal, adjusted or whether he is abnormal, all respond to understanding, patience, gentleness and kindness."

THIS WEEK IN Washington

THE NEW DEMOCRATIC CONTROLLERS Congress will be a pro-agriculture congress and according to all indications will be much more generous than the 80th congress in giving farmers about anything they want in legislation.

The only factor which might prevent this generally, according to observers here, is a failure of the leading farm organizations to agree on a program among themselves, or for some controversial subject like the butter-oil battle to build up such antagonisms as will defeat or water-down basic farm legislation.

The chairman-elect of both the new house and senate agricultural committees... Congressman Harold D. Cooley of North Carolina and Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma... have advocated a straight-away 50 per cent of parity price support in opposition to the sliding 60 to 80 per cent as presently provided by the Aiken bill which does not take effect until January 1950. Farm organizations are not in complete agreement. All want price support but they have not reached accord on the ratio of parity.

The same thing is true on conservation. All farm organizations want the conservation program continued but the American Farm Bureau federation favors giving the agricultural extension service, which the federal shares in financing in some localities, wide responsibility for administration. The National Grange and the Farmers Union oppose the Federation stand and would put only the educational feature of the conservation program under the extension service.

It may be that the national conventions of the various organizations will bring them more into alignment.

In only four states do the Grange and the Farm Bureau really run a ship-and-luck race for membership. In New York, Grange membership was 141,227 with the Farm Bureau membership at 87,336; in Michigan the Farm Bureau has 18,194 and the Grange 24,291; in Ohio the Farm Bureau membership is 35,777 while the Grange runs 113,632; and on the west coast in California the Farm Bureau has 47,654 and the Grange 34,132.

Another large farm organization serving some 2,500,000 farm families is the Council of Farm Cooperatives with 115 marketing and purchasing cooperatives with about 5,000 local groups. Memberships in these groups, however, duplicate memberships in the other three farm organizations. Executive secretary of this organization is John W. Davis, a former school teacher and school superintendent, Missouri-born and Iowa-based, formerly with the Farm Credit Administration and the Commodity Credit Corporation. He is a member of the eleven-man national advisory committee on research and marketing under the Hope-Flannagan act and twice served on U. S. delegations to the International Food and Agricultural Organization. An inkling of what may happen to farm price support in the coming congress is given by Mr. Davis when he says that he senses among farmers a move back to the more rigid price support system rather than to the flexible C-30 support plan as provided in the Aiken long-range farm law.

HERE ARE SOME THINGS the farmers may get in the next congress if they ask for them... stand-by price controls without price ceilings on food or farm products as long as they don't get out of hand; more grain bins from CCC; government authority to regulate trading margins on commodity exchanges; extension of export and import controls; approval of the International wheat agreement if pact can be revived with British support; farm home building in the housing act; government loans and grants to low-income farmers; increase in rural electrification and school lunch appropriations; additional crop insurance; overhaul of the farm credit agency; a national fertilizer program; and increased appropriations for reclamation and irrigation projects.

The farm population of the nation placed at approximately 27.5 million, is not selfish in demands for price supports and other legislation according to farm leaders here. What they want is long-range programs to cushion the farmer from sudden economic shocks and save his land from slow deterioration under the contention that this is in the interest of the entire country. In return the farmer will continue full and abundant production of food and fiber. These leaders point out that depression hits the farmer first and that farm collapse would bring the rest of the economic structure tumbling, so the nation's stability rests upon the farmers' economic security.

THE LAST OF THE SATELLITE SOCIALISTS

AS this is being written the last of Bulgaria's "Liberals" (Socialists) are beginning their long, sad trek to the hereafter through the grim dungeons of Sofia's prisons.

History just seems to go round and round. Through every age, and in every land, there is always, first—the "ruling class" which "got there" through brains and energy; second—an element of impractical theorists who call themselves "Liberals"; third—the wolf-pack from the cities' gutters, always waiting and ready to devour the mess the Liberals invariably make of any nation they get control of.

A "majority" is usually wrong, because one-half doesn't think and the other half doesn't know; so if the "ruling class" is unable to sustain a nation's economy, almost any long haired Liberal with a persuasive tongue to his vocal chords and an aptitude for making glowing promises, can sway the electorate.

So class No. 2 take over, and their wonderful theories create a horrible mess out of just a plain mess.

A sudden coup d'etat—and the wolf-pack is in. They wreak their gutter vengeance upon the clergy, and the wealthy first; the Liberals—whom they used—next; then the small business man and the farmer; and lastly—upon each other!

This same routine has occurred so many times through history—and still stupid men like Wallace never learn! If this man ever got control of our government, he for one, wouldn't live three years. Nor would any of the leaders of his party; for no matter how red they think they are, only their blood would be red enough to satisfy those who followed them.

All those nations which now lie in the dim hell behind the Iron Curtain, illustrate so graphically this infallible rule. In each the ruling class was thrown out by the Liberals (Socialists), and in each the Liberals have been killed, imprisoned or—in a few cases—have escaped to other countries.

Few of them are to be pitied, for the Socialist—as a rule—is as selfish a purveyor of power as is the Communist; and all the deceitful palaver about the "equality of man" means equality for you and me—under Socialist overlord.

The game of chess originated more than 5,000 years ago in Hindustan.

CAPITOL STUFF

by Governor Mearns Mudgett
If expanding New England industry requires increased hydroelectric power within the next 10 years it will have to come to Maine to get it. This is apparent from a report I have received from the Power Survey Committee of the New England Council.

This important report is the result of an exhaustive examination of the existing power situation in New England, a prediction of the probable growth of power demand over the next decade, and an indication of the increase in generating capacity which will be needed to meet the public demand.

Since 1920, in addition to an increase in population of about 20 per cent, New England's demand for electric energy has risen over 400 per cent. There is an apparent need for an increase in this section's generating capacity of 1,100,000 kilowatts during the next 10 years. This will mean the construction of about 110,000 kilowatts capacity a year. Plants now under construction are expected to be able to handle the anticipated demand of the immediate future.

According to the Power Survey Committee's finding, it is apparent that most of the new generating plants to be built in New England, outside of Maine, must use fuel as a source of power. The total potential capacity of undeveloped water power in the region is about 420,000 kilowatts and of that amount 263,000 kilowatts are in Maine.

New England water power, except in our State, the report confirms, has become of small importance as a basis for future industrial development. Hydroelectric power, it is reiterated, is cheap in the most favorable locations.

This fact, viewed against a diminishing reserve of oil and the increasing cost of mining and distribution coal places the State of Maine in a most favorable position for the developments of the next 10 years particularly.

The cost of general relief in Maine, as reported for the month of October, again shows a rise over the figures for the corresponding period in 1947. This is reflected in the figures which have been given me by Commissioner David H. Stevens of the Department of Health and Welfare.

The number of cases handled in October—2701—was an increase of 200 over the corresponding period last year. Cash and/or kind payments totalled over $100,000, which represented an increase of better than $8,500. Average cost per case, however, showed a drop of $2.66 from the October, 1947, figure of $40.86. For general relief during the month, $85,125.94 was expected from local funds, and $44,068.52 from State funds.

The number of apprentices registered in Maine last month underwent a huge increase, rising from 466 at the beginning of November to a total of 571. This increase of more than 20 per cent was called to my attention by the Apprenticeship Council. The healthy growth represents an exceptional service not only to industry, but to labor, and indicates that we are training more, and more young people to fulfill the need for skilled workers and to replace the older workers as they are retired from industry. The number of registered apprenticeship program remained constant during the month, and the net number of apprentices in training at the beginning of December was 570.

RETAILERS AGREE

President Truman, in a telegram to a retailers' conference, said that the reduction of distribution costs is especially important today in order to help reduce prices and make the consumer's dollar go farther.

That point of view is fully shared by the great majority of the retailers of this country. And they haven't just paid it lip service. They have shown, by tangible and aggressive action, that no group is more aware of the dangers of inflation, and none is more eager to combat it to the limit of its abilities.

The policy of typical retailers, chain and independent alike, has been to reduce prices whenever possible, to resist price increases as long as possible, to avoid high-priced goods when suitable, lower-priced substitutes are available, and to hold down overhead and operating costs to the lowest practical level. They work on very small unit profits—and earn an adequate total profit through heavy volume. Their contribution to the economic welfare of this country is immeasurable.

U. OF M. ADDS DEPARTMENT OF JOURNALISM

President Arthur A. Hauck of the University of Maine announced recently that the Board of Trustees had approved the establishment of Journalism in the College of Arts and Sciences.

"The Trustee's action," President Hauck said, "reflects not only present-day student interest in courses in that field but also a friendly interest which many editors and publishers of Maine have shown in the university's journalism program."

According to Dean Joseph M. Murray of the College of Arts and Sciences, the new department will offer "professional guidance, with-in the liberal arts curriculum, for junior and seniors who plan careers as reporters and editors."

The department will be headed by Wayne Jordan, professor of journalism, who was senior news editor of Business Week when he joined the university teaching staff in 1946. He had formerly been news editor of the Toledo Times, news editor and associate editor of the Detroit Free Press, and managing editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer. Instruction in journalism at the University of Maine dates from 1914 when courses intended to prepare students for practical newspaper work were introduced in the department of English.

BEAN WEEVIL INJURES 1948 BEAN CROP

Bean weevil injury to the 1948 bean crop has been reported by Joseph O. Hickey, Extension Vegetable Specialist.

Mr. Hickey says that bean weevils may be controlled by storing the beans in a cold place so that the weevils will not breed or multiply rapidly. Old and new beans should never be mixed together and the beans should be stored in tight containers, such as glass jars, closely woven cloth sacks, barrels or bins.

Hickey suggests that beans be checked from time to time. If tiny punctures or round holes are noticed in the beans, that lot should be used as fast as possible.

"Commercial growers storing beans should fumigate with carbon disulphide," Mr. Hickey says. Beans showing signs of weevil injury should not be used for planting, next year, and further states that such beans will give poor germination.

A Letter from Santa Claus to All the Young Folks

Hanover, Maine
December 8, 1948

Dear Boys and Girls:

This is old Santa Claus writing to you again and inviting you to come to see me in my Hanover Workshop before Xmas. Mr. Ogden, who purchased the Roberts Furniture Co., here in Hanover, is letting me use his shop this year as I have in the past.

I suppose you have seen some of Santa's toys around in all the stores. . . well, Santa has quite a lot of toys right here in his workshop: Dolls, books, games, and all sorts of things.

Of course, you understand that Santa has been keeping track of his good little boys and girls all year, and also he has a note on the few who have not been as good as Mother and Daddy would have liked them to be. Santa Claus wants all boys and girls to be good!

Now I have got to tell you a funny story about Santa Claus himself— Well, last night I started to paint my sleigh. I had buckets of paint all around on the floor and sure enough if I didn't stub my toe and fall right over a bucket full of red paint. It must have been funny because I was all covered with red paint from head to toe. I finally got it all cleaned up, but it was an awful job.

I guess that if I'm going to get any work done, I had better stop writing for now. I will write again next week, so until then—Be good boys and girls.

Lots of love from

SANTA CLAUS

P. S. I nearly forgot to tell you when I am going to be in the shop. I will be in the workshop starting Saturday, December 11, right through until the Night Before Christmas. And, so that all of you boys and girls will be able to come to see me, I will also be here on Sundays until Christmas.

Remember, that's every day, including Sundays, from two o'clock in the afternoon until nine o'clock at night.

FIRE DANGER NOW AT PEAK, ENGINEERS SAY

The danger of home fires will be greater during the next three months than during any other part of the year, the National Board of Fire Underwriters points out.

Year after year, fire losses climb as the temperature falls, the National Board engineers reveal. For that reason, they urge householders to inspect their homes to reduce winter fire hazards.

Defective chimneys and flues cause many of the fires which break out in homes during the cold months. Chimneys should be inspected carefully, and all cracks and holes should be repaired. Flues should be cleaned.

Overheated stoves and furnaces also endanger the home, the fire experts point out. When heaters fail to give sufficient warmth, they should not be forced. In many cases the equipment may need cleaning or repair, and occasionally a new heater may be required, but "forcing" any heating device is always dangerous.

Portable heaters should be cleaned regularly while in use, and kept away from combustibles. In one state, neglected portable heaters are listed as the number one cause of serious fires in residences during the past 25 years.

The National Board engineers also suggest that observation of these seven rules would reduce the probability of your home catching fire:

1. Don't use kerosene to start fires in stoves or furnaces. Use rolled or folded newspapers.
2. Refill portable oil heaters outdoors. Keep portable heaters where they won't get knocked over.
3. Don't overload electric circuits by plugging in too many heaters or appliances.
4. Remove all rubbish, old clothes or papers from the basement and attic, and check to be sure that no combustible are placed close to any heating device.
5. Always put ashes in a metal container.
6. Place a tight-fitting metal

An Ever Present Help

by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale (Editors Note: Dr. Peale is minister of historic Collegiate Church
on Fifth Avenue, New York City; and author of the current best seller, "A Guide to Confident Living.")

At a meeting one evening, a minister friend of mine, who is a great soul, a rugged personality, a man's man, made the assertion that Almighty God could solve any problem, no matter how difficult. The following morning another minister phoned him and said, "I have a woman in my study who heard you speak last night. She says you are wrong, that her problem cannot be solved."

When my friend met this woman,
she said, "My husband is a scientist, 33 years old. He committed a bad moral crime and is now in the State penitentiary. Psychologists and others pronounce him hopeless.
The judge refuses parole, stating he must serve his full term of 20 years.
You said God could solve every problem; let us see Him solve that one."

As God's ambassador, my friend accepted the challenge. He went to the penitentiary where he immediately recognized the prisoner as a former professor, a man of distinction.

The prisoner said, "You have driven a long way to see me, haven't you? That was nice of you, but I have no use for ministers and I have no use for God. You might as well turn around and go back. You cannot do anything for me. All you do is preach theory."

"All right, I will go," my friend and advertising agency artist, who has just returned from five years travel abroad, will head the fashion department. Lincoln Rockwell, of Boothbay Harbor, who recently won first prize in a National Illustrators Society contest for posters, is well known in the State of Maine.

said, "but, let me say I did not come out here to enjoy myself. I came to do something for you, but you are so stubborn that you do not want anything done for you. However, I will leave you two Bible texts. Mail them over and I will be back here in two weeks. If you heed these words and believe them, you will be changed."

He gave him a passage from the 1st Chapter of Romans, Verses 28-31, which shows man at his worst;
"And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind to do those things which are not convenient; being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, malicious-ness, full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, whisperers; backbiters, haters of God, despiteful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents, without understanding, covenant-breakers, without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful."

The man said, "That is me all over."

"All right," said the minister,
"That is you at your worst. Now just turn over here in the same book of Romans to the 5th Chapter, and see what it says in the 20th Verse, "...but where sin abounded, grace did much more abound," and balance the one against the other. You think you are absolutely defeated. Apply those two texts."

A few weeks later my friend went back to the prison and found

WHO ELECTED MR. TRUMAN?

Ever since the election, some of the more prominent labor leaders have been claiming that the unions elected Mr. Truman. According to them, the biggest single issue was the Taft-Hartley Act.

That will take a good deal of proving to anyone who has made even a cursory examination of the final returns. Governor Dewey ran strongly in the industrial states, where the labor vote is proportionately largest, and carried most of them. The President, on the other hand, did extremely well in the agricultural regions where organized the man quiet and thoughtful. To make a long story short, today this man whom everyone considered hopeless is the scientist in charge of one of New York City's greatest industries. He has been out of prison seven years and is again a distinguished personality in the community.

God is the answer. He is your refuge and your strength, an ever present help in trouble. Say that to yourself until your doubting mind begins to believe it and put it up next to your problem. I care not how difficult it may be. That problem will open as do flowers in the heat and light of the sun. There is no human problem which God cannot solve.

labor amounts to a small minority of the population.

Arizona provides the most interesting example. Mr. Truman carried it easily. Yet, at the same time, the voters approved a measure outlawing the closed shop. That certainly doesn't look as if the people want labor to hold the whip hand over the government or the people.

Mr. Truman does not owe his remarkable success to any group or any class. He wasn't elected by labor or capital or agriculture or any other segment of the nation. He was elected by the American people, and he is President of all the people. He doesn't even owe allegiance to the Democratic leaders—most of them deserted him when they thought his cause was lost, and he won in spite of these unadmirable defections.

Harry S. Truman has a chance to go down in history as one of the great Presidents—as a man who,
when the world was torn between slavery and freedom, stood staunchly for the liberties of mankind, and was too big to admit allegiance to special interests of any kind. The whole civilized world hopes that he may measure up to the enormous responsibilities that have fallen upon him. He has a chance now to rise above group prejudice or group selfishness.

Work he did to beautify his homestead won Donn MacLaughlin, 18, of Dexter, top State Honors in the 1948 National 4-H Home Grounds Beautification program. Donn graded the driveway, fertilized and cared for the lawn, transplanted flowers, and helped move 125 yards of dirt for a planned new driveway. During seven years of club work, Donn has completed 13 projects and has served as secretary and treasurer of his local club. In recognition of his 4-H achievements, Donn has been awarded a 17-jewel gold watch provided by Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, Chicago.

All of these activities are conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperating.

COME academy award time, those in the movie industry who are eligible to vote upon the acting gem of the year are going to have a time choosing between Olivia de Havilland in "The Snake Pit" and Jane Wyman in "Johnny Belinda" . . . We would personally give the edge to Jane, based purely on the wonderful pantomime she employed as the deaf-mute, one of the most difficult roles for any actress to play . . . Oddly enough, the race was between the same two actresses in 1940.

Alan Young, heard Fridays on NBC's Jimmy Durante show, received a citation from the Los Angeles humane society for his work in placing "orphan" puppies in more than 10,000 southern California homes . . . There are a number of "Blondie" and "Dagwood" fan clubs across the country, but now the cast of the popular NBC show is celebrating the fact that an "Alexander" club has been started in Cleveland, O., by his former school chums there.

PLATTER CHATTER

Victrol: An intriguing album called "Perfume Set to Music," was released by this company recently . . . The title is self-explanatory . . . Harry Revel, British-born composer, famous for his "Bolero," has taken some of the well-known French accents and set music to them . . . This is something entirely different . . . It would be interesting to have a bottle of each particular scent in the room as the music is played, but it isn't necessary so well does Revel capture the various moods.

Capitol: If you're a jazz fan you're going to be happy with a new album by Capitol called "Giants of Jazz" . . . All the big names that formed an important part of "A Song Is Born" play their numbers from that picture on eight sides of sizzling wax . . . Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey and Charlie Barnet, to name a few . . . Best of all, all proceeds from the sale of the album go to the Runyon cancer fund, so you can treat yourself and help other almshouses.

Successful Parenthood

MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS

Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

LET'S think about homework today. Most of our boys and girls sit down each evening to do their assignments. Just how much do we know about what they're studying? How often do we talk with them about the subjects they're taking up in class?

We may not be able to solve a problem in algebra, and we've probably forgotten how to conjugate Latin verbs. But we can help our children in other ways to get a good grasp of the facts and ideas they bring home from school. Often, we can broaden their horizons with more detail than their teachers have time for. In other words, we can add to their store of knowledge and understanding with some of our own.

For instance, there's "current events"—or maybe it's called "social science" in your school. This isn't the subject we parents knew in our schooldays. It's been vastly expanded, so that now it includes most of the important events happening in the world—history right out of the daily headlines.

For example, in most up-to-date public schools throughout the country, boys and girls are forming a pretty good picture of what atomic energy is all about. They talk intelligently about the city government and how it functions. They're well versed in the workings of the United Nations. Right now a good many young people are following the U.

essions in Paris, even keeping up with the day-to-day agenda. The U. N. discussions of new history-making measures like the Declaration on Human Rights, fire our boys and girls with understandable enthusiasm. The emphasis in our schools on our own democratic creed has helped produce a healthy interest in protecting human rights everywhere. Our boys and girls would like to see a world where people of every race and creed live together in harmony, just as they do in our own country. As parents, we can encourage this outlook in tomorrow's citizens.

Yes, our children are growing up fast these days—mentally as well as physically. It's up to us parents to keep right in stride with the new ideas they're absorbing in school. When questions pop up at the dinner table, we want to be ready. Any good teacher will tell you that the best pupils come from homes where the parents are alive to what's going on in the world. So it's worth whatever time and energy we put into it—and perhaps we'll learn a few things along the way ourselves!

And, oh yes, there are practical ways in which you can help make homework an integral part of becoming educated—not just tasks teachers demand of your children. A good dictionary, a few reference books, a well lighted desk are every child's right. Learning to use them at home as well as at school is the first step in continuing one's education throughout life.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Plate, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual—National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

If the judgment of representative business leaders is correct, those who anticipate a drop in the cost of living are doomed to disappointment. The outlook now is that some prices—notably foods—will probably decline during the coming year. However, even if this happens, it will be offset by higher prices in other directions, principally in the field of manufactured goods.

A recent statement by Henry Ford II indicates the trend of thinking on the top industrial levels. According to him, a fourth-round wage increase "is inevitable." Then he said: "Prices, too, must go up. Prices are high today, maybe too high—but we can't lower them without lowering wage and material costs." When asked for his views on price control, Mr. Ford said it would not hold prices down and "would wreck the nation—the auto industry included—and ruin the economy."

The attitude of the principal labor leaders is also indicative of things to come. At the recent CIO convention in Portland, Oregon, Mr. Murray, Mr. Reuther and other high executives in the organization laid most of the emphasis on plans for obtaining repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, and for the framing of legislation which, in their view,

STATE OF MAINE
To all persons interested in either of the Estates hereinafter named: At a Probate Court held at Paris, in and for the County of Oxford, on the third Tuesday of November in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and forty-eight, from day to day from the third Tuesday of said November. The following matters having been presented for the action thereupon hereinafter indicated, it is hereby Ordered: That notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by causing a copy of this order to be published three weeks successively in the Oxford County Citizen a newspaper published at Bethel in said County, that they may appear at a Probate Court to be held at said Paris, on the third Tuesday of December A. would be favorable to labor. At the same time, they made it perfectly clear that they will demand, as a general thing, substantial wage increases. The AF of L is not so aggressive in attitude, but there is little doubt that it will follow a similar policy.

It might be argued, as a theoretical proposition, that higher wages need not constitute any particular problem to industry—that it has to do is to raise its prices to compensate and carry on in the same old groove. But that argument, in many cases, is simply not workable in practice, and for a variety of reasons.

First, there is a group of basic industries which cannot adjust their charges without permission of one or more governmental agencies. These are the regulated industries, of which the railroads are the most conspicuous example at present. In spite of the rate increases they have been given by the Interstate Commerce Commission, their return on investment is only about three per cent. Very heavy demands for wage increases are being made on them, and more may follow. Even if the ICC should continue to grant higher rates to compensate for changing conditions, the time factor is serious. Wage raises, when granted, go into effect at once and are often retroactive. Higher fares and freight charges are normally granted only after months of investigation and are not retroactive. Even then, as a general rule the rate increases are never quite sufficient to offset the wage boosts.

There is another group of industries which must meet foreign competition. Here shipping is the best example. According to the statistics, seamen's pay has risen 207 per cent since 1937, while wages, along with other expensive concessions, at the same time, the companies' volume of business and the profits have declined. Foreign lines, which pay far lower wages and can operate more cheaply in all ways, are getting more and more tonnage.

Finally, there are any number of industries which are perfectly free to raise prices as high as they like, but which must keep a worried eye on the consumer. In other words, it is one thing to price an article at a given figure, but it is a different thing to get people to buy it at that figure. Consumer resistance has become an ominous factor in a number of fields, and is feared in others. On top of that, it is not only

Those in this vicinity getting deer were Hanno Cushman, Her- the individual buyer that must be considered. The big industrial consumers often dominate the picture. For instance, coal is a source of energy which must be sold in competition with other sources of energy, such as oil. If coal prices should get out of line, there would be a gradual shift to other fuels—and then, of course, the employment offered by coal would steadily decline.

Industries serving the demand for luxuries and semi-luxuries—things people can do without if they have to—are especially concerned as the wage problem moves to the front again. Motion pictures are a good illustration of this. Box office receipts in the United States have been drifting downward. There has been a heavy decline in foreign income, due to currency restrictions, freezing of funds, and stiff taxes abroad. The top movie minds think that current ticket prices cannot be further raised without a shattering effect on attendance. Efforts to reduce the production costs of pictures and still keep them attractive to the potential customer have not been too successful. So here too the prospect of higher wages is the cause of many a headache.

Labor argues that increases in living costs have made higher wages necessary. Industry replies that the trend of living costs is inevitably tied to the trend of wages. There is a great deal to be said on both sides. The problem is to find a common meeting ground. Efforts in that direction will take up a large share of the national energy during the coming months.

CHARACTERISTIC

The Post, of West Palm Beach, Fla., recently carried an interesting editorial about a heavy wind storm, accompanied by torrential rains, that struck that region. High-tension wires were torn down, and electric service stopped. Then, within minutes, the lights of trucks, obscured by the tearing storm, were seen crawling along the streets. Crews from the power company swarmed into trees and among buildings, fighting the twirling, broken wires. Lashed by wind and rain, they climbed the poles and repaired the damage. Forty minutes after the breakdown the lights came back on, the refrigerators hummed, and radios spoke once more.

The Post published the names of the line crew and the trouble men who did the job. And in its editorial it said: "There came to our recollection the endless statistics we hear from politicians about 'Big Business.' We recalled the statement of one such sycophant, 'You can always make headway attacking the business.' And again, 'Raise hell with the public utilities. That's always popular.'"

"We tried to imagine that pol-Median doing the things we had seen these rubber-coated men do. We lacked that much imagination...."

This deserved tribute was paid to the crews of one electric company. And essentially the same thing has happened time and time again throughout the country. The companies go on quietly giving fine service, often under the most adverse conditions. And the people who work for them have the knowledge the courage, and the spirit that makes that kind of service possible. That is one of the characteristics of free enterprise.

The LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Now folks, the election is over—we have picked the Captain—also the crew. Some of the crew are clear of eye—some are of 22 gauge and sneaked in under the tent as the big, free, outdoor exhibition took place at the Main Entrance. But by-and-large, the crew is average. I reckon, and being on our payroll now, it is up to every mother's son of us to tell the guy we elected just exactly what we want done. So take your pen in hand.

If 51 people of each 100 say to their man there, we want to go like England—have the Govt. be the Big Cheese—make everybody more or less a drone—then that is what we will have. But if 51 of each 100 say, nix—we want to see the Govt. brought back to the style that our great grandpa and George Washington gained for us, then we will have that kind of Govt.

It is that simple. Congressmen are alert to votes—can detect 'em, day or night, via postcard, telegram, or how. So don't go around blaming Congress—blame your own self if this Nation goes into a bad-lam—you didn't write and lay down the law to your man there on the meandering Big River. Those guys are not as simple as some of 'em sometimes seem—they just haven't heard from you.

Yours with the low down,
JO BERRA
